Brussels – Chocolate Capital of the World

Brussels is not (1).... the capital of Belgium and the center of the European Union but, (2) most people don't know, the chocolate capital of the world. Ever since the Belgian Jean Neuhaus created the first praline a hundred years (3), Belgium has been home of the chocolate business and many chocolate lovers claim that the (4) chocolate in the world comes from Belgium.

Europe's history of chocolate goes back to the 16th century when Spanish explorers (5) cocoa beans home from Mexico. At that time cocoa beans were traded and served (6) ... a form of money. When the Belgian king Leopold II occupied Congo and made it a Belgian colony thousands of tons of cocoa were shipped home. This encouraged the growth of the chocolate (7)

Belgium produces 170.000 tons of chocolate a year, sold in over 2000 shops (8) ... throughout the country. Every Belgian consumes (9) ... 11 kg of chocolate a year.

Of the six million tourists who visit Brussels every year, only few of them leave the city without a box of pralines. The city offers them special chocolate (10) ..., where they learn about the history of chocolate, see how pralines are made and taste them in the best shops of the city. Most tours start at the Museum of Cocoa and Chocolate.
